

Level of participation of students of the Faculty of Education at the University of Damascus in University activities

Dr. Ahmad Muhammad Kinj

Abstract

This study aims to know the level of participation of the students of the Faculty of Education – Damascus University in the university activities and the differences of the participation among the students according to studying variables. The researcher has chosen the descriptive analytical method to verify the goals and hypotheses of the study and used the standard of the participation of students in the university activities. There are (473) students in the study sample, (159) male (314) female and (244) second year (229) fourth year. The study concludes that the level of participation of the students of the Faculty of Education in the university activities is "medium". - there are no differences of statistical significance among the marks achieved by students (male/female) regarding participation in the university activities as a whole and on different levels (with the exception of the level of participation with other students and the level of professional development). There are no differences of statistical significance among the marks achieved by students (second/fourth year students) regarding participation in the university activities.